CONTEXT: TPNW AND MSP1

The adoption of the Treaty on the Prohibition of Nuclear Weapons (TPNW) in 2017 propelled the nuclear disarmament agenda and set the stage for bolder global action on this matter. More governments join the TPNW each year and the impact of the Treaty's ratification can already be felt in key areas like investment financing, public attitudes towards the nuclear ban and non-proliferation negotiations.

The ongoing War of Ukraine highlights the existential threat that nuclear weapons represent to all humanity. The risk of nuclear escalation is clearer than ever, showing that our international security model cannot rest on nuclear deterrence. The risk is too high: the humanitarian consequences of nuclear weapons would be unbearable for humanity.

Local governments and peace municipalism have long been a key support of the nuclear disarmament agenda and stand ready to renew their efforts in 2022, joining its partners in government and civil society at Vienna's First Meeting of TPNW States Parties (1MSP) (21-23 June 2022). Local governments are mobilizing to ensure their national governments attend the Meeting and that the voices of their fellow citizens in support of the TPNW are well heard during the conference.
