

The Department of Politics and International Relations, OxPeace (the Oxford Network of Peace Studies), and Pusey House, in collaboration with Building Bridges for Peace invite you to a screening of the new film

the hardest
bridge

and to meet Jo Berry and Pat Magee in person at the Auditorium, St John's College, St Giles, Oxford OX13JP

Tuesday 3 February at 7.30pm

As a Volunteer with the Irish Republican Army, Pat Magee planted a bomb in the Grand Hotel, Brighton, during the Conservative Party Annual Conference in 1984, which killed five people including Sir Anthony Berry MP, father of Jo Berry. Magee was arrested in 1985 and imprisoned in 1986 but released under the Good Friday Agreement in 1999. Jo went to meet him. Ever since they have been on a transformative journey which has taken them to situations of tension and conflict in many countries.

Can the wounds of war heal? Can enemies reconcile? 'The Hardest Bridge' (45 mins) focuses those questions through the insights of Pat Magee and Jo Berry. They will speak and answer questions after the film. Also present will be the film's director, Dr Imad Karam, an award-winning British-Palestinian film maker, and executive producer Howard Grace.

The event will be followed by a drinks reception.
